

Society's Water Nymphs.

Marvelous Aquatic Feats Performed at Newport, Bar Harbor and Narragansett Pier by Leaders of Fashion—Smart Women Who Handle Yachts Skillfully.

The society season of sport is wide open, and the tendency of women in the smart set seems steadily turning toward specialties in one exercise or another. Few fashionable dames or damozelles appear to have the time or inclination to develop themselves into all-around athletes, women, and who score best at golf does not pretend to stand in with the circle of horse lovers or know an anchor from a limbo.

On the other hand, the swimmers are supremely indifferent to business and long putting shots, and this summer the flock of fair human ducks is larger than ever. All along the coast the women are who score the lumbering steam pleasure boats, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., in the "Vanderbilt," who uses the title with a wrist of steel and perfect judgment, and Mrs. H. C. Trevor is not a bit less skillful. Another smart yachtswoman is Miss Emily Hoffman, and Newport knows no able swimmer than the two handsome young daughters of Mrs. Orme Wilson, for they vastly prefer the sea to the shore, a day's hard work with tiller and sails to a night's dancing, and a talk with a barnacle old salt to the society of the smartest youth in the social register. From all these evidences it will be gathered that we are in a fair way to owning a ladies' marine flotilla to challenge those famous English women of of good taste and splendor here as on the other side of the Atlantic.

Fashionable Bread-winners.

When riches slip out at the window of fashionable folk by no means permit poverty to come in at the door. If you have the interest, just pick up the business idiosyncrasy and find how assiduously and profitably dame industry has been cultivated by men and women who possess in the lap of luxury. The success with which they do this is the result of the modern tendency for educating even the wealthiest boys and girls to learn a trade or an art that at any moment could be turned into a profession.

In the list of fashionable bread-winners are milliners, dressmakers, landscape architects, actresses, artists, designers, caterers and restaurant keepers. It was a woman who had her living to get who turned to landscape gardening when necessity arose, and Miss Beatrice Jones put considerable money in her pocket and valuable reputation to her credit by beautifully laying out Mr. John Kennedy's place at Bar Harbor and assisting in designing the great gardens at Biltmore.

So soon as ill-luck crossed her father's path, Florence Lautbach decided to put her shoulder to the family wheel. After graduating from a New York school, she entered an office to work like a clerk, with dreams of one day being taken into the firm to sustain her in her industry.

There was a tide of ill-fortune that forced Miss Kitty Moore to look about her as she put away her ball gowns and made some big check aprons, and now she has the biggest pigeon hole in her closet for her two years to make it pay for itself, but now it pays her handsomely, just as Miss Emily Hoffman's.

There is a year as an agent for foreign playwrights, and Mrs. John Bloodgood and her husband, who are both well known from their salaries on the stage. It took Miss Weatherhead only just a year after the business of the stage to get into the making business that asked favors of nobody, but now keeps eight sewing machines running at home.

There are all women who support themselves by their own exertions, and a dozen more could be named who from the veriest butterflies have at need metamorphosed themselves into the busiest of busy-gathering bees. EMILY HOLT.

SOCIETY OF THE QUEEN'S KISS.

A Charming Story of a Set of School Girls.

At Raleigh, in the county of Essex, has just died an old lady, almost a centenarian, who enjoyed a certain popularity in the neighborhood. She was called "the old lady who had kissed the queen for a shilling." She had, in fact, kissed her majesty on both cheeks in exchange for a piece of silver. This is the story:

The little Princess of Kent was about a year old, and her nurse used to walk with her every day under the trees in the park of Richmond. One day, in summer, the nurse met the young ladies of a neighboring school promenade. Among them was a pupil whose father was employed at the princely house. She pointed out the royal baby to her companions, and they all surrounded the nurse and begged permission to embrace the infant. "Let each of us give her a kiss, and we shall give you each a shilling."

The nurse re-entered the palace with a little sum of money, and ingeniously told of the adventure.

The Duchess of Kent at once sent her physician to the school to find out the state of the health of the young girls who had indulged in such audacious familiarity. She was reassured. The pupils were scolded, and the Duke of Kent made an expression of paternal pride which chronicles have preserved.

"Nurse," he said, to the weeping parent, "you are pardoned. For my part, do not think it wrong for my daughter to be kissed by the queen's nurse. But for the future I forbid you to let her be kissed for less than a guinea. And yet, that is for nothing!"

After this incident the pupils of the school formed a sort of association under the name of Society of the Queen's Kiss, and when the Princess Victoria of Kent mounted the throne they recalled themselves to her memory. "We are," they said, "the first among your subjects from whom your majesty has received homage."

At all important occasions, the Society of the Queen's Kiss addressed new homage to the sovereign, but the number of members grew less, and there only remained these days the old lady of Raleigh. The Society of the Queen's Kiss is now extinct.

KITCHEN WISDOM.

Suggestions of Constant Value to the Housewife.

Always heat a frying pan before putting anything in it, not scorching, but hissing hot. Test it with a drop of water—if it dances about a little hissing globe, the pan is just right. Things laid in an oil pan and then set over the fire are certain to stick, besides they lack the appetizing crispness which is the main reason for frying. In breakfast, particularly, it makes all the difference in the world in flavor.

Unless vegetables are taken direct from the garden they are improved by freshening in clean cold water. Wash bruised taste so often made in chopping. Keep the mini in water until washed, and do not make the same mistake until the meat is to accompany in the platter ready to serve. By using fresh lime juice instead of vinegar, the dressing will be much more palatable, and your mint sauce may be quite transmuted.

ROYAL WOMEN AND THEIR DRESSMAKERS

It is not very generally known, perhaps, that some years ago Queen Victoria caught the dress reform fever and joined an association. She furthermore inveigled a number of her dowager friends into becoming members.

Although the queen never astonished her court by appearing in a dress cut a la reform, she thought the idea of a more rational mode of dress a capital one—at least for the other women.

Through the queen's influence the Princess of Wales and her daughters became converts, and for a brief season Princess Victoria and the Duchess of Fife appeared upon occasions in gowns that were at least semi-reformed.

It cannot be said, however, that it ever became violently enthusiastic upon the subject.

During the last fifteen years the Princess of Wales has scarcely varied the fashion of her costumes at all. Through the age of big, puffed sleeves she clung to the small ones. For the make of her gowns, the style known as "Princess" has always been adhered to and no one else has been able to dislodge her.

She does not favor the fashion of high collared coats, and her ball dresses are made with the old-fashioned court bodice, the shoulder strap drooping into the arm.

The Princess's dress attire is apt to be of the simplest description upon ordinary occasions. One traveling the continent who had a peep at Queen Victoria and the Princess Beatrice, wrote home to her mother, "The dress of the empress was far more plain than their gowns."

The empress and her staff of dress-makers.

The German empress, too, has well defined ideas about dress, and once organized a dress reform order, which counted among its members many high and mighty dames. The empress, however, is too fond of fine dress to carry these reforms very far. Twelve dressmakers are kept constantly employed in the empress's tailoring department, as it is called, under the supervision of a lady of the court. The staff is increased to forty at certain seasons, when court festivities are going on, or the empress is preparing for a journey. Blue and white are, by the way, the favorite colors.

The empress buys yearly 100 evening and state dresses, twice as many carriage and visiting costumes, and about 50 frock-coats and house dresses. 400 frocks at all told. The sewing machine is an unknown quantity in the empress's tailor shop. From $25 to $50 a yard is paid for the silks and satins of which her dresses are made.

The czar's wardrobe.

The empress of Russia spends more on her wardrobe than any royal lady in Europe. Until and for a short time after her marriage, she dressed with almost severe simplicity, but the grand ladies of the Russian court, who were used to the empress's indifference to regal splendor of attire, and the result is that her majesty is gorgeous now in raiment which might be likened to "wrought gold." Shoes are an important item for the lady has a pretty foot with a high instep and her size is No. 2 B.

Royal handkerchiefs.

Queen Margherita has a passion for dainty handkerchiefs and the best belong to her. It is valued at $30,000, a not exorbitant sum, when one considers that three artists worked at it for twenty years. It is placed in a gold sheath about the size of a Lima bean.

The favorite dress of Queen Olga of Greece is of blue and white, and is decorated with gold and silver being the national colors, and besides the makers of silk in her realm have not learned to dye it any other colors.

The cost of the dresses of royalty and carriage and house dresses are the perquisites of the "head woman of the bedchamber," who, after making a selection for her own use in some of the best of the world, then sets over the parties or to an "old clothes" establishment. Here they are not allowed to be sold, as they are received, but in all cases they must be returned to the wardrobe.

Actresses are among the principal customers of these shops.

Aristocracy's Fine Clothes.

The Countess of Warwick, whose wit, beauty and philanthropy are often paraphrased in the world, is in some ways like unto royalty itself. She is a woman with exquisite golden hair, deep blue eyes, finely marked brows and a graceful, elegant figure.

Another grand dame whom we can claim as one of our countrywomen, the Countess of Castlereagh, has a large magnificent wardrobe, and she seldom wears a gown more than three times at most.

Black—but black of the airiest and most sparkling description—Lady Randolph Churchill's favorite material for gowns, while white moire embroidered in silver is chosen invariably by Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain for her ball dresses.

The woman who has more gowns than any other of this or any other age—2,000, it is said, with 500 women to care for them—is madame, the wife of Li Hung Chang.

In striking contrast is the attire of the Countess de Martel—"gyp"—as she is better known by her nom de guerre. She plays an important part in the social life of Paris, but is noted for the simplicity of her attire. Her plain poke bonnet and Quaker-like dress always make her conspicuous.

KATHARINE KING.

PROFESSIONAL ANXIETY-BEARER

Young Woman Who Shows Hostesses How to Be Happy.

How to be happy, though the hostess of a large dinner party with a long menu, is what an exceedingly thoughtful young lady, at the rate of from $3 to $5 an evening, is showing a number of women.

Another grand dame whom we can claim as one of our countrywomen, the Countess of Castlereagh, has a large magnificent wardrobe, and she seldom wears a gown more than three times at most.

Black—but black of the airiest and most sparkling description—Lady Randolph Churchill's favorite material for gowns, while white moire embroidered in silver is chosen invariably by Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain for her ball dresses.

The woman who has more gowns than any other of this or any other age—2,000, it is said, with 500 women to care for them—is madame, the wife of Li Hung Chang.

In striking contrast is the attire of the Countess de Martel—"gyp"—as she is better known by her nom de guerre. She plays an important part in the social life of Paris, but is noted for the simplicity of her attire. Her plain poke bonnet and Quaker-like dress always make her conspicuous.

KATHARINE KING.

CHINESE COOKS AND THEIR TELEPHONES

Innovation That Has Brought Comfort to Housekeepers.

In San Francisco, where cooking and the matters pertaining to the kitchen are the subject of more thought than in the east, there has been introduced what is known as the kitchen telephone, and it has been voted such an unqualified success that no well-appointed house in California is without a "bello machine" in its kitchen.

The maid of all work and the kitchen fairy of the East coast is a Chinese. This peculiar feature of the far west has not yet come into favor in the east, but those Americans who have tried it say that there is no superior to the picked chef of the Chinese.

The kitchen telephone is a distinct advance in the direction of overcoming the national complaint of dyspepsia, and to order the dinner was found to be accompanied by various drawbacks. The tradesmen were disposed to "guy" the Celestials; the Chinese were not anxious to pay a visit to the nearest fan tan game when sent on an errand, and the troubles that followed in the train of this derelict of civilization were almost too numerous to enumerate. So the Californian housewives set about to discover some means of communicating with the provision dealer, the grocery man and the fruit purveyor, without the necessity of sending a messenger to them, and the telephone was the result of their cogitations.

It took a long time to get the Chinese cooks adjusted up to the idea that the telephone was a perfectly harmless invention. Every Chinese cook in the west had not read that Confucius speaks in favor of the telephone and receiving the guileless Chinaman of thousands of years ago, and it required a special meeting of the Chinese cooks, at which the story was read, to convince them that the god of the telephone would not visit his wrath upon their heads if they dared to exercise him in the way suggested.

The story was told by an intelligent Chinaman, who was pressed into the service by the California women when they were endeavoring to educate them to use the telephone. A queer output of a few thousand years before Confucius had two temples, in one of which the confession of the Chinaman would be told to go post haste to the other temple, where the second priest would grant him absolution. While the Chinaman was covered by the space between the two temples the first priest was hard at work telephoning the substance of the confession to the second one, so that by the time the second temple arrived at the second temple his story was ready to be read off to him until he was compelled to grovel before the supernatural being who possessed such powers of divinity.

Since the innovation described the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company has gone among the 25,000 Chinese in San Francisco, many of whom are wealthy merchants, and has induced so many of the Chinese to subscribe that a telephone exchange has been established in Chinatown, which is the only one in the United States.

The Liver Keeps People Well.

When the liver is sluggish, all other organs are involved. You suffer from Constipation, Biliousness, Headache, Indigestion, Pain in Back, Chills and Loss of Energy. You will never know how promptly these troubles can be cured until you have tried it. It cures quickly when other remedies utterly fail. Regulates the Liver, Purifies the Blood, Herbine is a Harmless Vegetable Remedy, gives new life and energy almost from the first use. Price 50 cents. Free Trial Bottle at Z. C. M. I. Drug Department.

JULY EASTERN EXCURSIONS

Via Rio Grande Western Ry. Detroit and return, $51, on July 1-3-5. Richmond and return, $59.75, on July 2-4-6.

Indianapolis and return, $46, on July 16-17-18.

For full particulars call or write ticket office, 200 City Bank corner. The Rio Grande Western railway offers fast trains to the east daily, with through Pullman Palace and ordinary sleeping cars. Perfect dining car service. Magnificent scenery. Cool and delightful ride across the Rockies.

FOURTH OF JULY RATE

Via Rio Grande Western Railway. On July 2 and 4 the Rio Grande Western railway will send excursion tickets to any point on the lines at one single fare for the round trip. Tickets good until July 6, 1899. Best local train service to Ogden, Pocatello, etc., etc.

EASTERN RATES

Via Union Pacific Railway Company. July 1-2-3, Detroit and return, $51.90. July 2-3-4, Richmond and return, $59.75. July 16-17-18, Indianapolis and return, $46.00.

Company's office, "Old Stand," 201 Main street.

At Lagun Sunday at 2:15. The (4) four Miltons—saxophones, quartette—will play the music of the day. Musical exercises. Admission free, grand stand 10 cents.

monar bearer of dinner party anxieties.

Her idea was too good not to fall into prompt and profitable working order, and last winter she had rather more engagements at $5 an evening than she could fill. What she does literally is to manage dinners, or wedding breakfasts, or large luncheons, and though she neither cooks nor waits on table, she fulfills a most important mission.

She stands before the hostess in all her glory. A half hour before the meal is served, she appears in the dining room and sees to it that the butter has got into the table and the salt is arranged and the pink of perfection, that the wines are rising or falling to precisely the right temperature, then she sits her big apron, and as guests file into the dining room she takes her stand by the pantry's dumb waiter, to not only observe that every dish comes up exactly on time, but piping hot when it ought to be hot, chilled to the marrow when the chill is necessary, but, furthermore, she tastes it to see that its flavor is exactly what it ought to be.

Having a quick wit, resourceful mind and a profound knowledge of French cookery, she takes care that no dish passes onto the table that is not above reproach. When she stands in the pantry there is heard none of the crash and grind of dinner party machinery; no long waits between courses, elapsing and the first drop of every wine poured must first be tested on her sensitive pink tongue.

Now this may seem a sinecure, but grateful hostesses thank her work as an exalted modern philanthropy, for even if the butler is a perfectly new man, the cook a possible traitor to her trust, and the caterer apt to play tricks with his less and sorbet, so long as the dinner management is at the pantry heeding nothing can go wrong, no cold soups, hot champagne, dried up birds, or scalded vegetables will ever make their appearance at the table.

With all the ease of an unfettered soul the hostess can give her whole mind to her guests. If she is a hostess new to the business she will send for the managers before hand and have her dinner all planned for her, every detail considered even to the color of the flowers and the pattern of the table cloth, and the very latest surprise in an epicurean delicacy worked up for the envious delectation of her guests. But this is an extra.

CHINESE COOKS AND THEIR TELEPHONES

Innovation That Has Brought Comfort to Housekeepers.

In San Francisco, where cooking and the matters pertaining to the kitchen are the subject of more thought than in the east, there has been introduced what is known as the kitchen telephone, and it has been voted such an unqualified success that no well-appointed house in California is without a "bello machine" in its kitchen.

The maid of all work and the kitchen fairy of the East coast is a Chinese. This peculiar feature of the far west has not yet come into favor in the east, but those Americans who have tried it say that there is no superior to the picked chef of the Chinese.

The kitchen telephone is a distinct advance in the direction of overcoming the national complaint of dyspepsia, and to order the dinner was found to be accompanied by various drawbacks. The tradesmen were disposed to "guy" the Celestials; the Chinese were not anxious to pay a visit to the nearest fan tan game when sent on an errand, and the troubles that followed in the train of this derelict of civilization were almost too numerous to enumerate. So the Californian housewives set about to discover some means of communicating with the provision dealer, the grocery man and the fruit purveyor, without the necessity of sending a messenger to them, and the telephone was the result of their cogitations.

It took a long time to get the Chinese cooks adjusted up to the idea that the telephone was a perfectly harmless invention. Every Chinese cook in the west had not read that Confucius speaks in favor of the telephone and receiving the guileless Chinaman of thousands of years ago, and it required a special meeting of the Chinese cooks, at which the story was read, to convince them that the god of the telephone would not visit his wrath upon their heads if they dared to exercise him in the way suggested.

The story was told by an intelligent Chinaman, who was pressed into the service by the California women when they were endeavoring to educate them to use the telephone. A queer output of a few thousand years before Confucius had two temples, in one of which the confession of the Chinaman would be told to go post haste to the other temple, where the second priest would grant him absolution. While the Chinaman was covered by the space between the two temples the first priest was hard at work telephoning the substance of the confession to the second one, so that by the time the second temple arrived at the second temple his story was ready to be read off to him until he was compelled to grovel before the supernatural being who possessed such powers of divinity.

Since the innovation described the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company has gone among the 25,000 Chinese in San Francisco, many of whom are wealthy merchants, and has induced so many of the Chinese to subscribe that a telephone exchange has been established in Chinatown, which is the only one in the United States.

The Liver Keeps People Well.

When the liver is sluggish, all other organs are involved. You suffer from Constipation, Biliousness, Headache, Indigestion, Pain in Back, Chills and Loss of Energy. You will never know how promptly these troubles can be cured until you have tried it. It cures quickly when other remedies utterly fail. Regulates the Liver, Purifies the Blood, Herbine is a Harmless Vegetable Remedy, gives new life and energy almost from the first use. Price 50 cents. Free Trial Bottle at Z. C. M. I. Drug Department.

JULY EASTERN EXCURSIONS

Via Rio Grande Western Ry. Detroit and return, $51, on July 1-3-5. Richmond and return, $59.75, on July 2-4-6.

Indianapolis and return, $46, on July 16-17-18.

For full particulars call or write ticket office, 200 City Bank corner. The Rio Grande Western railway offers fast trains to the east daily, with through Pullman Palace and ordinary sleeping cars. Perfect dining car service. Magnificent scenery. Cool and delightful ride across the Rockies.

FOURTH OF JULY RATE

Via Rio Grande Western Railway. On July 2 and 4 the Rio Grande Western railway will send excursion tickets to any point on the lines at one single fare for the round trip. Tickets good until July 6, 1899. Best local train service to Ogden, Pocatello, etc., etc.

EASTERN RATES

Via Union Pacific Railway Company. July 1-2-3, Detroit and return, $51.90. July 2-3-4, Richmond and return, $59.75. July 16-17-18, Indianapolis and return, $46.00.

Company's office, "Old Stand," 201 Main street.

At Lagun Sunday at 2:15. The (4) four Miltons—saxophones, quartette—will play the music of the day. Musical exercises. Admission free, grand stand 10 cents.

Grips the Figure Closely.

New Traveling Dust Coat Fits From Neck to Knee—No Gracious Flare at Shoulder or Hip—Novel Yachting Cap With Pudding-shaped Crown.

New York, June 30.—Slankier, slankier, slankiest has been the progress of the season, but a revolt of woman is already in the wind for autumn. At this very minute in Paris the fate of the winter styles is hanging in the balance. The heads of the great dressmaking establishments are in conference, and one bit of news has leaked out, that is we are to have larger sleeves next autumn. Let us hope we are also to have shorter, fuller skirts, for our latitude of body has been so dreadfully sacrificed to secure excessive longitude.

All women will do well to adopt the Liberty silk streamers that were first introduced at the French races in the spring. A piece of the filmy silk, some three yards long and nearly a yard wide, every woman who drives or sails this summer, wears tied in a big bow under her chin with loops and ends flaunting to the breeze and some of them buy very transparent chiffon and cover their large hats and their faces with it as a veil, from the scarf, knot under the chin and throw the ends to the breeze. Nothing seems more daintily feminine than these fairy sails, usually sweetly perfumed with orris, rippling about head and shoulders, shedding fragrance and becoming shadow on the wearer's head and face.

Killed By His Own Popularity.

Definitely the chain is gone. Too great popularity killed it. In its place the bangle ventures to put forth, but the result is doubtful, and by determinedly putting off their watches women have ceased to make themselves the slaves of time. In truth, never that womankind begins to bear, when in her grand Parisian toilet, less resemblance than ever to her own, and a more and more striking likeness to a dragon fly.

Now behold, in the interest of what has been said above, some of the wraps that are typical and influential in the realms of the smartly dressed. Black silk and pongee and brilliantine dust coats are strong elements in every full wardrobe, and some of them are made with great art, while capes with three falls, knee long redingotes and cutaway top coats in very light melton, covert, sand cloth and Scotch tweed, are the wraps taken along when junketing at cooler northern resorts.

One and all these comforters are cut to grip the figure closely from neck to knees. Capes depending in three falls are the newest design, and there is no gracious flare at shoulders or hips. On the capes, in place of the time-honored two numerous hoods, a scarf, to bright silk is draped about the shoulders, either a Highland plaid or a silk showing Roman bands is adopted, and then a wonderfully beautiful, pleasing effect against the sober browns and grays which all the capes are colored.

Summer Outing Coats.

The really lovely dust coats seem almost imperative adjuncts of the driving toilets, at golf tournaments, polo games, etc., and ostensibly they serve as protectors against glare and dust, for the delicate muslin, lace and forward gowns they cover. In reality they do duty as fashions for the ethereal toilet.

But the really lovely dust coats seem almost imperative adjuncts of the driving toilets, at golf tournaments, polo games, etc., and ostensibly they serve as protectors against glare and dust, for the delicate muslin, lace and forward gowns they cover. In reality they do duty as fashions for the ethereal toilet.

A perfectly loose sacque of lightest gray water-proofed cloth, falling to the knees and belted by a band of the same goods, is the smart sea wrap, whether for yachting, pacing the sands by moonlight, or crossing the ocean, and a queer output of the season is growing partially among women for wearing caps. At the seaside younger women have suddenly developed a profound respect for the pudding-shaped affair of the roughest white serge, gathered at the center of the top to a huge red silk pom-pom. A broad white silk veil, lined with pale pink taffeta, just wreath out over the face, and this, with a veil of the faintest pink chiffon laid over the face, crossed at the back of the head and tied under one ear with a bow and ends nearly a yard long, is one of the favorite caps for yachting.

Some Golfing Novelties.

Golfing women are finding comfort in gray felt Robin Hoods that are the quaintest prettiest caps out. The crown of a Robin Hood is round, the head easily, is moderately high, and against this the unbound two-inch wide brim, that diminishes to a mere nothing in the rear, turns up on both sides so that a long pointed visor extends over the eyes. On one side, where the brim flattens against the crown, a long, very flexible cock quill is thrust through the crown, the feathers on the side a rosette of bright silk fastens brim and crown together with a bright

For Hard Country Drives.

yard long, is one of the favorite caps for yachting.

Some Golfing Novelties.

Golfing women are finding comfort in gray felt Robin Hoods that are the quaintest prettiest caps out. The crown of a Robin Hood is round, the head easily, is moderately high, and against this the unbound two-inch wide brim, that diminishes to a mere nothing in the rear, turns up on both sides so that a long pointed visor extends over the eyes. On one side, where the brim flattens against the crown, a long, very flexible cock quill is thrust through the crown, the feathers on the side a rosette of bright silk fastens brim and crown together with a bright

For Hard Country Drives.

yard long, is one of the favorite caps for yachting.

Some Golfing Novelties.

Golfing women are finding comfort in gray felt Robin Hoods that are the quaintest prettiest caps out. The crown of a Robin Hood is round, the head easily, is moderately high, and against this the unbound two-inch wide brim, that diminishes to a mere nothing in the rear, turns up on both sides so that a long pointed visor extends over the eyes. On one side, where the brim flattens against the crown, a long, very flexible cock quill is thrust through the crown, the feathers on the side a rosette of bright silk fastens brim and crown together with a bright

For Hard Country Drives.

yard long, is one of the favorite caps for yachting.

Some Golfing Novelties.

Golfing women are finding comfort in gray felt Robin Hoods that are the quaintest prettiest caps out. The crown of a Robin Hood is round, the head easily, is moderately high, and against this the unbound two-inch wide brim, that diminishes to a mere nothing in the rear, turns up on both sides so that a long pointed visor extends over the eyes. On one side, where the brim flattens against the crown, a long, very flexible cock quill is thrust through the crown, the feathers on the side a rosette of bright silk fastens brim and crown together with a bright

For Hard Country Drives.

yard long, is one of the favorite caps for yachting.

Some Golfing Novelties.

Golfing women are finding comfort in gray felt Robin Hoods that are the quaintest prettiest caps out. The crown of a Robin Hood is round, the head easily, is moderately high, and against this the unbound two-inch wide brim, that diminishes to a mere nothing in the rear, turns up on both sides so that a long pointed visor extends over the eyes. On one side, where the brim flattens against the crown, a long, very flexible cock quill is thrust through the crown, the feathers on the side a rosette of bright silk fastens brim and crown together with a bright

For Hard Country Drives.

yard long, is one of the favorite caps for yachting.

Some Golfing Novelties.